THIS COURT, having considered Steven Wells' Motion to Intervene to Assert Right to Client Confidentiality, Meghan Rae and Manifest Legal, LLLC's opposition, and any reply thereto, hereby DENIES the motion. The parties to this litigation can and have adequately addressed LOCL clients' interests in privileged information, and this Court has already issued orders to protect such information. In the Court's Protective Order covering privileged and confidential information (Docket 31) and the discovery order explaining the Counterdefendants' ability to redact information from billing records that includes "information that reveals litigation strategy or legal advice or opinions" (Docket 183 at 37), Mr. Wells' privacy interest in his billing records created by LOCL has already been addressed by this Court.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
